

A partnership with Atlassian to help young people across Sydney innovate solutions to improve their schools and communities.

The brief.

Education Changers was approached by Atlassian to develop a program to support young people from across Sydney to innovate solutions to improve their schools and communities.

What we did.

We drew on our previous experience of supporting student and social entrepreneurs to launch a series of hackathons for students and their teachers. Schools from across Sydney were recruited, and we worked closely with Atlassian to engage more than 150 of their staff over the course of the program. Five hackathons were run at the Atlassian offices in Sydney, with significant learning and life improvements documented across the schools.

542

students engaged in the Atlassian hackathons.

9000+

people experienced learning or life improvements as a result of the student launched initiatives.
